Join us for this Writers Workshop Showcase Poetry Reading featuring members of an on-going workshop led by former Oregon Poet Laureate Peter Sears. This event includes five Oregon poets and is hosted by Peter Sears.

—Sarah Bokich is a poet, freelance writer, and marketing consultant. Her work has recently appeared in VoiceCatcher, and is forthcoming in Cloudbank and Timberline Review. She lives with her family in Portland, Oregon.

—John Harn, who is originally from Michigan, moved to Oregon in the late 1970s. His poems have appeared in a number of magazines, including Pleiades, Denver Quarterly, Poetry East, Prairie Schooner and Cloudbank. Last year his manuscript, Less, Probably, was a finalist in two Northwest book competitions. John spent 20 years as an ESL teacher. So if you notice that his poems are 100% grammatically correct, he asks for your understanding.

—Bob Monson grew up in Silverton, graduated from Willamette, and taught high school English. He is now retired.

—Robbie Pock teaches writing and humanities at Pacific University, and reading and writing at Portland Community College. She is a graduate of Pacific University's MFA in Creative Writing program. Her poems have appeared in Cloudbank, Present Tense, Rain, and The Long Islander. Her chapbook manuscript, Vantage from the Tree House, is currently looking for a loving home.

—Helen Puciloski is a lifelong Oregonian who currently resides in Rainier, Oregon. Her poetry has appeared in Calyx, Cloudbank, Floating Bridge Review, and others. She has an MFA from Pacific University.
